Form 990 (2018)

Form 990, Part III, Line 4a:

Collaborative Infrastructure--The Foundation performs several services to support collaboration between institutions, library organizations, and library-technology vendors. These include web conferencing services, shared document storage, electronic mailing lists, user experience design software, and discussion boards. All of these services are in significant use of Foundation communities.

Form 990, Part III, Line 4b:

Administrative Infrastructure Community Formation- The Foundation provides a legal, non-for-profit corporation structure to provide administrative functions to the Foundations component software development projects. This includes legal advising on licensing and intellectual property rights, banking accounting functions, web presence outreach, and meeting event support. The Foundation also has successfully onboarded additional communities during the year to expand the reach and impact of the Foundation efforts. Expenses are mainly contributed efforts by Foundation volunteers to educate potential communities to the value of the Foundation, and to negotiate terms for joining the Foundation.

Form 990, Part III, Line 4c:

Software Development Infrastructure- The Foundation provides a sophisticated software development environment for our constituent project communities that include code repositories, software testing environments, support for specialist consulting, infrastructure for servers, network identity, software license compliance tools and structures, and other affordances to improve collaborative software development activities
